The Senator's Great Speech Has Aroused Democratic Politicians.

" I Am Still a Democrat," He Said, and Defined His Democracy.

" Republican Protection " and the Force Bill Exposed.

Senator David B. Hill's speech at the Brooklyn Academy forms an absorbing topic of conversation to-day among politicians of a great deal of enthusiasm in the ranks of his own party adherents, while his frank etatements are seized upon by Republicans as affording salient points for criticism upon party lines.

capacity, the audience having been greater than any ever before gathered in that edifice. There were elaborate decorations and music by Conterno's Band. Col. Thomas E. Pearsall resided, and besides Senator Hill, Lieut.-Gov. sheehan and Railroad Commissioner Beard-aley made speeches. Many men of local and National fame in the Democratic party occupied seats on the platform.

A great ovation was tendered to Senator Hill when he was introduced by Chairman ger. Pearsall, He was in excellent voice and prime physical condition. When he began to speak the audience paid the closest attention and punctuated his speech with frequent and tumultuous applause.
The opening sentence struck the keynote of the entire address. He said:

"I am reminded of the fact that it was in "I am reminded of the fact that it was in this edifice upon a memorable occasion in 1885 that I had the honor of expressing to the intrepid Democracy of Kings County the sentiment, 'I am a Democrat,' and under the existing political situation I know of no more appropriate place or presence than here to declare that I was a Democrat before the Chicago Convention and I am a Democrat still."

The cardinal points of difference between the Republican and Democratic parties were pointed out at length. The record of the mocracy, dating back to the administration of Jefferson, was rehearsed, and the senator then dwelt upon the differences be-

Senator then dwelt upon the differences between the parties on the subject of tariff taxation. He said:

"Concisely stated, what is the position of the two parties upon this question? I desire to state it fairly. The Republican party advocates the doctrine that the Government has a constitutional as well as a moral right to impose tariff duties for the purpose of encouraging the building up of private industries by the imposition of duties sufficiently large to prevent foreign competition, irrespective of the question of the needs of the Treasury, while the Democratic party believes that the Government has only a consitutional and moral right to impose such duties as may be necessary to raise sufficient revenue to support the Government economisitutional and moral right to impose such duties as may be necessary to raise sufficient revenue to support the Government economically administered. This is the precise issue, squarely stated."

On the subject of "Ropublican protection," denounced in the Chicago platform, the Senator said: "Republican protection does not constitutionally exist, but is imposed upon the people by fraud, false pretense, evasion and gross abuse of the taxing power. It is a perversion of the powers of government."

Further on he declared: "Incidental protection is unobjectionable. We believe in revenue with incidental revenue."

The operation of the McKimley bill and the history of its inception and enactment were described in telling phrases. The people, he said, had recorded their verdict upon the bill in the election of 1890, and the House, with its Democratic majority, passed bills in accordance with that verdict, all of which were contemptuously and arrogantly laid aside by the Republican Senate.

On the subject of the Force bill Senator Hill spoke with feeling and directness. He pointed out that the real author of the measure, which he characterized as a "menace to liberty," was John I. Davenport, "a diminutive, polite and amiable person, 'as mild a mannered man as ever scuttled ship or cut a throat."

Davesport had unblushingly announced to Senator Hill's Committee that he should again push the bill "when the Republicans shall ayain have a majority in both houses of Congress.

The Senator pointed out the objectionable features of the Davenport-Lodge bill and denounced it and the intent of its originators in scathing terms. He said:

"It would drag Judges into politics, degrade the army, weaken respect for Federal authority, provoke conflicts between races as well as between the people and the military, and the present era of conclination and good feeling would be supersided by the prevalence of a spirit of bitterness and hate. The bill is a desperate attempt to prop up the failing fortunes of a once great political party; it was conceived in political animosity, is urged from the narrowest and worst of motives, and is unworthy a place among the statutes of the American Republic."

After detailing the record of the Democratic party in this State, and its legislative achievements, Senator Hill said:

"I plead not for individuals, but for the ad not for incividuals, but for the cause. In a great contest like this men are nothing, but principles are everything. Our candidates represent our principles, and our principles, and our principles cannot prevail without the election of our candidates. The contest may be a severe one, but so much more glorious will be the victory if we win.

"You need have no uneasiness—'The Old Guard' will do its duty. Look out for the raw Guard' will do its duty. Look out for the far-recruits.

"With this motto inscribed upon our banner, Public office is a public trust, supple-mented by the other sentiments which I have endeavored to present to you to-night, 'No public taxation for private purposes' and 'No Force bill,' let us close up our ranks and buckle on our armor for the fight, with 'he determination to do all in our power for the triumph of our party and the election of our honored standard bearers, Cleveland and Stevenson."

Chairman Harrity, of the Democratic Nathoni Committee, expresses great pleasure over Senator Hill's speech. He and other Lembers of the Committee consider the speech to be a masterly review of the situa-tion, and, therefore, the most valuable cam-paiga contribution made so far.

Chairman Quincy of the Sub-Committee on Literature, has ordered to be printed 100,000 copies of the speech for distribution throughout the country. The 100,000 copies are the first installment of an order for 1,000,000 to be printed as fast as they can be run off the presses. Committeeman B. R. Smalley said: "The ExtCoroner Felix W. Doyle, of Brooklyn, was jubilant to-day. He said:

"I do not think any one will venture to question after last night that the Democrats of Kings County are a unit for the nominations made at Chicago. Those of us who were for Hill before the Convention have accepted our defeat in manly fashion, nor is there scar or sore left after the great battle at Chicago. I was at Chicago and saw there that the people had taken hold of the issue, and when the people take hold they generally accomplish their purpose. There can be no doubt whatever that the Democrats of Kings County are a unit for Cleveland and Stevenson, and will roll up the largest majority ever given to a candidate, even larger than that given to Tilden in 187d, whichwas 18,000 and over."

Senator Hill then repeated his utterance to the Tammany Society July 4 last, thus:
